Gender-marginalized composers remain incredibly under-represented in classical music. Recent studies by Donne, Women in Music show how dismal these numbers truly are. Their most recent study analyzed the repertoire of 15 major orchestras worldwide during their 2019–2020 concert season, and found that out of nearly 4,000 works, only 142 were composed by women, and only 8.2% of all concerts included a single piece by a non-male composer.
